

Approval of training providers

TRAINING PROVIDER APPROVAL

The certification body must approve the training provider in terms of quality and suitability.

This approval is required if the program is defined as an entry requirement.

Close cooperation with the certification body is recommended during the development of the certification scheme.

IMPARTIALITY PRINCIPLE

The impartiality approach is a crucial criterion of ISO17024.

It requires separation between the training process and the testing/certification.

The organisation that delivers training must not be the same that tests and certifies the competencies.

EXCLUSIVITY AND PROVIDER APPROVAL

Other training organisations may apply for approval, though this is uncommon.

In practice, a single VET provider is usually the exclusive training provider for the competencies of the certification scheme.

This exclusivity helps ensure coherence and effective management of the process.
